19th June 2016

Luke 9: 18-24

It probably comes as no surprise to you, but society appears to have become more self-focused and more tuned in to “me” time. This is certainly made obvious by the minute to minute updates posted on the various social media platforms. This is the era of me-focused social media; people check their pages or sites multiple times a day from their laptop, smart phone or other mobile device. On most occasions we are curious to see what others think of our ideas, our latest outfit or love interest! We are, above all, curious to know “Who do others say I am?”... Am I conforming as they wish?

Do I live up to their standards? Am I comfortable with criticism? Can I deal with being different? Do I take pride in revealing how wonderful others think I am?

The goal for many now in their use of social media becomes how they can curry acceptance, popularity, status, and by extension, self-esteem through their profiles and postings. Self-awareness and self-expression give way to impression management and self-promotion.

The question that Jesus poses at the heart of today's Gospel is the very one that has taken root in many hearts; “Who do you say that I am?” Jesus was not asking it for any vain reason. He was asking it to bring about an act of faith in the hearts of his followers. We need to stop and think: What would Jesus say to us if we were to ask Him

“Who do you say that I am?” Perhaps we should take it as an exercise in meditation; close our eyes and listen to the honest answers He gives. Our first reaction to this proposal might be one of apprehension but if it is honestly entertained it will bring us back to the core of our beings because Jesus knows us better than we know ourselves.

The answers are already in the scriptures. There we are described as children of God, precious to Him, unique, made in His image, His masterpiece ... the one for whom He has infinite love. The one He waits for, the one He calls.

The one He has set free and does not condemn. Perhaps we should listen more to what God thinks about us rather than what social media impresses upon us. Perhaps we should believe what God thinks about us and form our self-identity on the basis that He, the Christ, the Son of the Living God, came into the world to save us, so that where He is we too might be.
