Sent to Serve

Jesus sent them in pairs.....this brings home to us how people who follow Christ never do so alone. This does not mean that our faith is not personal; it is deeply personal but not individualistic. The light of faith is handed and passed on from one to another.

The future health and hope of the Church finds a deep source in the friendship of faith and in collaboration in ministry and service. The parish of now and the future will find its life only in the working-together of all sorts of people – male and female, cleric and lay, old and young, believing and half-believing. Our faith in God and our living of this faith depends much on the community of faith of which we are a part. This is emphasised in the gathering at Sunday Eucharist. We believe that no one is an island. Brendan Kennelly the Kerry poet puts it well; 'Self knows that self is not enough'.

We are called in love and sent in love on the mission the Lord has for us individually and as a community. In responding to this call we find new life in Christ and strengthen his presence in our community.

THE CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY WELCOMES
YOU WITH GREAT JOY!
